Is there an app for the irish lottery.

($2.99)We know, Photoshopping an iPhone pic just so you can post it on Instagram is a bit much. But FaceTune offers an impressive suite of editing tools—no computer necessary. You can smooth complexions, make zits disappear, correct red eye, and brighten teeth so fast, it's hardly high-maintenance. Available for iPhone, Android, and Windows Phone(Free)According to an allure.com poll, 38 percent of women have too many products to count in their makeup bag. Enter this app, which keeps track of not only your mascaras, lipsticks, and bronzers, but all of your skin- and hair-care products, too. It stores info, like when you bought an item and how full it is, then anticipates when you're running low. It sends you a reminder to refill, and when it's time, you can purchase a replacement within the app pulls in coverage from more than 30 magazines and blogs—allure.com included—so you never have to miss a new product review. Available for iPhone ($2.99) This app is the ticket for beauty addicts shopping on a budget, pairing splurge-worthy products with cheaper drugstore versions. It's not perfect (the search function is pretty bare-bones, so we prefer to scroll through the app's individual category lists), but it puts inexpensive product recommendations for hair, makeup, skin, nails, and tools all in one place. Available for iPhone (Free) Ever wonder what you import. It's easy, too: Just upload a selfie, trace your hairstyle with your finger (so the app knows where to apply your chosen shade), and pick from one of the 30 blonde, brown, and red hair-color options. Download the premium version to unlock 20 more shades. Available for iPhone, Android, and Windows Phone AD tries out the leading roadworthy smartphone applications—with all the pros and cons—so you don't have to August 21, 2017 Photo: Petar Chernaev / Getty Images Agood vacation can turn into a nightmare at a moment's notice if you are ill-equipped for your destination. Language barriers, currency snafus, directional errors—all tiny factors that could put a damper on your trip. Luckily, there is an app for that. Arm yourself with these 11 apps before jaunting off on your next adventure. Pros: The app's handy interactive phrasebook and voice translator help in avoiding awkward miscommunications and language barriers. In addition, TripLingo advises on etiquette and cultural norms, such as tipping and appropriate greetings, so that you can navigate any situation the properties of the like a local.Cons: While the app is amazing for learning key phrases, it's not the ideal platform for learning a foreign language. Pros: Out of the thousands of flight apps out there promising the lowest prices and best predictions, Hopper reigns supreme. Using its unique algorithm along with its ability to scan thousands of air carrier websites, Hopper not only provides guidance on the best time to travel to your destination but also tracks flights you are interested in and alerts you to price changes. Cons: You must be willing to act fast to get the best prices on your desired flight. Pros: The newest addition to Google's collection of travel apps, the Google Trips app takes the stress out of planning activities on your time away. The app personalizes everything from restaurant reservations to sightseeing based on your unique taste. Cons: Google Trips will pull in all of your travel details automatically, but only if you booked using a Gmail account. Pros: Focusing on bringing travelers closer to local cuisines, VizEat offers an array of experiences, from cooking classes to a prepared dinner with local hosts. You could be having dinner at someone's dining table in a glorious home or a picnic under the iconic walls of historic local treasures, depending on the experience you choose. Cons: You also have to be prepared to eat a meal with complete strangers. And smaller cities may not have participating hosts just yet. Pros: Road warriors, this one's for you. This wondrous app highlights attractions big and small on the road to your destination. A quaint little antiques shop just off the beaten path, a diner with that burger you'll never forget, Road trippers knows all the great spots that will make any drive a little more enjoyable. Cons: You will never get to your destination on time. Pros: The long line to get through U.S. Customs and Border Protection, travelers can submit their U.S. Customs and passport documents through the app, expediting your entry into the U.S. Bonus: The app eliminates the need for any paper forms. Cons: The app works only at select airports, but the app's creator is open to requests for new locations from avid travelers. Drop a line with your request here. Pro: Not only does this app is perfect for long trips abroad to multiple countries with different currencies. Con: The app has a variety of different financial features and can be confusing to a traveler just using it for currency exchange rates. Pro: Key your trip details into the app and PackPoint will create a curated packing list for your trip based on projected weather, excursions, and timing. Overpacking be damned! Con: The app offers a limited number of activities on which to base your packing list. To customize your activities and create a more specific list for your trip, you have to upgrade to Premium for $2.99. Pro: If you are a planner, your travel itinerary consists of a hundred email confirmations scattered throughout your inbox. The TripIt app neatly organizes this mess of emails into a convenient itinerary, alerts you to better seats that become available on your flight, and even tracks your rewards points. Con: You have to forward each travel-related email to an alias to compile. Pro to the Con: If you use certain email providers, such as Gmail or Outlook, the app can sift through your emails for you instead of having to take the extra step of forwarding each correspondence. Pro: For those travelers who have struggled to stay connected overseas without roaming charges, Wiffinity is the sharing platform that will always keep you online. Thousands of users update the app with the usernames and passwords for WiFi networks all over the world. Con: You will be dependent upon other travelers to update network information in your area. Pro: Hailed as "The Ultimate Transit App," CityMapper is the key to navigating a new city like a pro. Step into a local's shoes and learn the transit systems with ease in cities all over the world. Con: Elon Musk said it best when reviewing this app: "Boring, Does not include Mars." Apps that can make you money? It sounds too good to be true, but moneymaking apps to actually exist. While these apps won't make you respectable pocket money or pay for your monthly mobile phone bill. From market research apps to mobile advertising apps to sharing economy apps, you can download one or many of these moneymaking apps on your smartphone for you to engage with as you commute or have some downtime. After all, every dollar counts. Something to keep in mind is that among research market moneymaking apps, be wary of potential scams that ask for a fee to register (stay away) or over-exaggerate the potential earnings. Look at the app ratings and read the user reviews. You can also check with the Better Business's rating and any registered complaints. Here are 10 ways to make money using apps. Related: How to Make Money Consistently With Your App Without Annoying Ads The Money App (available for iOS and Android) is a market research app that earns you rewards for completing tasks, which include offering opinions, playing games, checking store displays, mystery shopping, testing services and participating in free trials. You open an account on the Money App and start completing tasks to accumulate rewards, which you can, in turn, redeem for cash using a PayPal account. The beauty of this app is that you can get paid within two to three working days of redeeming rewards -- which is unusual in the world of market research apps that typically pay once a month or don't offer cash rewards at all. What's more, the app scores highly (4.8 out of 5) on both Google Play and iTunes. One reviewer wrote: "I got my first 10 dollars within 5 days. That's pretty good for not getting up off the couch." Couch potatoes, rejoice; you now have options. Related: 13 Easy Investing Apps and Websites for Millennials iPollThe iPoll app (available for iOS and Android) is a customized market research app that allows you to earn money through taking market surveys, writing down diaries (of dairy consumption over three days, for example) and completing missions around retail (e.g., going to the grocery store). You register and are asked some basic information, such as your preferences and consumer habits, to determine your fit for missions, and then you receive alerts when there are new missions available based on your preferences and location. The beauty of this particular market research app is that it's customized, so you get alerts for tasks and missions that are suited to your interests and what you may actually enjoy. Users like iPoll, too: It's rated 4 out of 5 stars on iTunes -- and less glowing 3.1 out of 5 on Google Play. One reviewer wrote, "I like that there's usually not any technical difficulties or 'glitches'...and that the selection of topics are interesting and fun. ... Most of the time, surveys [are] easy to start and complete; also they're not exceedingly long!" For each survey, mission or diary completed, you earn rewards that can be redeemed for gift cards, or you can cash out using PayPal. You need only have accrued $10 to do so. Another perk: You're automatically entered into a quarterly sweepstakes to win $10,000 in cash. Related: 8 Ways to Make Money While You Sleep Foap is a moneymaking app (available for iOS and Android) that allows both professional and amateur photographers to make extra money selling photos taken on a smartphone. It's pretty genius. Basically, it's a crowdsourcing platform for brands and advertising and marketing agencies to find and purchase images from Foap's registry of more than 2.5 million photographers around the world. You register an account, upload your high-quality photos with clear tags, and the photos get rated by the registered community -- the higher the rating, the higher the photo's visibility. For each sale, you earn $5, and you can earn up to $100 per sale. There are also "missions," where brands and agencies will make specific requests for images. And recently, those missions have expanded to include videos. The app is well-rated on both iTunes (4.3 out of 5) and Google Play (3.8 out of 5). One reviewer wrote: "I love this app! It's entertaining, a new place to share my photos and I have the opportunity to earn money from them." Related: 15 Money-Saving Apps for People Tired of Being Nickle-and-Dimed Fluid MarketNot everyone has a vehicle, and many of us own vehicles that sit idle for the majority of days. Good news: This sharing economy app, Fluid Market (available for iOS and Android), allows you to rent out your cargo van, box truck, pickup truck, car and/or SUV by the hour, day or week. According to the company's website, you can make up to $24,000 per year by renting your truck on Fluid. You can also rent out your tools, such as drills, saws, hedge trimmers, as well as items that fall into the "Other" category, which have included miscellaneous things, such as platform shoes, a rowboat and a tandem two-person bike. Users generally like the app. It's rated 4.5 out of 5 on iTunes and 3.5 out of 5 on Google Play. One Fluid Market user said, "I love this app. I make money letting my neighbors use items that just sit around my house. It's so easy and I get peace of mind with the insurance." The vehicle so you can rent out your car and not have to be present to hand over the keys. Related: 21 Low-Cost Ways to Make Money from Home Swagbucks You make money as soon as you sign up for Swagbucks (available for iOS and Android) with a $10 sign-up bonus. The boilerplate market research app allows you to accrue points by taking surveys, shopping online or playing games, things you can do as you wait in line or have some downtime on your commute. You can also earn points watching videos. Swagbucks has been rated 4 out of 5 rating on both iTunes and Google Play. Perks for this app? Unlike other market research apps that aggregate third-party surveys, Swagbucks offers numerous opportunities for surveys, which leads to more opportunities to make cash. Do keep in mind that even though there are many opportunities for surveys, you will be disqualified from doing some of them based on your demographics. Another perk is that you can redeem your points for gifts cards or cash back from PayPal (the cashing out threshold is 2,500 Swagbucks points, worth $25). Users, for the most part, like the app. One user wrote, "Great way to earn extra cash during breaks at work or waiting for an appointment. Who doesn't have time for that? I use the points for Amazon gift cards and have cashed out several times in the last year to spoil myself." Related: How to Make Money as a Stay-at-Home Mom Slidejoy (available for Google Play) pays users for their lock screens. Once it's installed on your phone, you'll start seeing various ads featuring news or advertisers on your lock screen. You can swipe left to learn more, swipe up for additional ads or swipe right for the home screen. The good news is you earn passive income regardless of whether or not you engage with the ads -- just think about how many times a day you have to unlock your phone. If you wanted to earn more, you could do other things in the app, such as surveys. You can choose to be paid via Square Cash or PayPal (select "normal" mode), or you can donate your earnings to charity. The catch is that when you first sign up, you have to wait approximately three months before you can cash out. After that, it's a monthly cash-out payment. It's rated a highly respectable 4.3 out of 5 stars on Google Play, and one reviewer wrote about her experience: "Who doesn't love free money?! Four Stars only because they changed the cash-out options." One downside: Slidejoy has a rather steep 20 percent cash-out fee. Related: 8 Great Time-Tracking Apps for Freelancers Bookscouter "Great way of getting rid of books," wrote one user of the Bookscouter app (available for iOS and Android). "I got $170 from selling four books. The highest buyer is automatically put at the top so you can get the most for your books. The highest buyer is automatically put at the top so you can get the most for your books. The highest buyer is automatically put at the top so you can get the most for your books. The highest buyer is automatically put at the top so you can get the most for your books. I will definitely use again." new and old books. Once you download the app, it's easy to register (using your email address or through Facebook or other social networks). Then, start scanning book barcodes (using your email address or through Facebook or other social networks). Bookscouter their endorsements on iTunes (3.3 out of 5) and Google Play (3.9 out of 5). However, keep in mind, not all the books canned will produce price codes and some of the offers to buy your books I was going to give away seems worth it to me! Clear clutter AND get some cash." Related: 9 Mobile Apps That Are Taking Social Entrepreneurship to the Next Level As a market research app, Toluna (available for iOS and Android) stands out in the crowd, because users can get paid in cash using PayPal, and also the app offers rewards for more than just taking surveys -- you can also create your own surveys (e.g. based on current events, shampoo habits or opinion on latest tech gadget) that can earn you bonus points. Registration is simple, and to get a feel for how you can make the most out of Toluna, you can watch a webinar on ways you can milk the app. (Look for the next webinar in your notifications, on the upper-right-hand side of screen, which tells you about new surveys available.) The app is rated 3.8 out of 5 stars on iTunes and 3.3 out of 5 stars on Google Play, "Be patient and persevere! I've been here just a bit over a year and it's been wonderful. When you get enough points, go to the rewards center and choose what you like! If you go for cash. I like the PayPal advantage over waiting on a paper check," wrote one user on the Toluna community blog. Related: A Step-by-Step Guide To Building Your First Mobile App Userfeel app (available for iOS and Android) allows you to participate in usability tests, meaning you get paid to visit and explore new websites, perform various simple tasks on the site and offer recorded feedback and critiques. (There is a helpful video on the website that provides a clear illustration of what is expected.) Each test lasts 10 to 20 minutes, and you're paid $10 a test in cash via PayPal or Payoneer. One of the standout features of this app is that you take an initial "qualifications test," which records your voice and your screen as you walk through given tasks. This is a version of what you'll be doing, but it's unpaid and meant to not only test whether the app is working, but also to give you a rating by the UserFeel reviewer wrote, "I had few issues uploading my video, but their support team was able to help me recover it, and I got paid for my test. Very easy way to make some extra money. I can't wait to [do] another test video, however the Userfeel support team was responsive in trying to resolve these issues. Related: To Avoid Distractions and Stay off Facebook, This Entrepreneur Uses a Special App That Limits His Internet Use MuselyMusely (available for iOS and Android) is an online community and marketplace app for eco-friendly beauty and home products, as well as a social platform for women to share and receive healthy lifestyle advice and tips ranging from parenting to skincare to fitness. On Musely, you can shop for organic, up-and-coming brands and eco-friendly products, such as toxin-free nail polish or all-natural lipstick. The way to earn money on the app is to become a "Muse" (basically an influencer) on the site and create your own store to earn a 20 percent commission on the sales of the products you recommend.
